14h15 - 15h45: International "Governing Knowledge" - Panel 1

Simon Godard, Daniel Maul, Sebastian Büttner, Hugo Canihac
Discussants: Karim Fertikh, Antoine Vauchez

Governing international labor mobility presupposes both definitions of the worker and the rights governing his or her movement and social and legal protection. Worker mobility questions the territoriality of law and involves the intervention of international organizations. The first panel will focus on these definitions, the actors and the political and economic contexts of these definitions.

15h45 - 16h00: Coffee break

16h00 - 17h30: Managing work mobility in Europe - Panel 2

Anuscheh Farahat, Christoph Krenn, Hadrien Clouet, Ferruccio Ricciardi, Karim Fertikh
Discussants: Hugo Canihac, Nikola Tietze

Administering work mobility in Europe is based on the categorization of workers who have crossed national borders. At the same time, this administration is based on different bodies of law and the combination of one with the other. The 2nd panel discusses the historical construction of different categories of workers, the different rights applied to them and the establishment of administrations to enforce these rights.
