“Interdisciplinary Perspectives on Climate and Biodiversity Crises: Representations, narratives and imaginaries of crisis and the socio-ecological transformation”

- ✧ Co-organized by the Centre Marc Bloch (Berlin) and the CERES (Centre de formation sur l'environnement et la société) together with the INRAE and the EHESS (Paris) at the École Normale Supérieure (Paris)
- ✧ Date: 7-10 April 2025
- ✧ Venue: École Normale Supérieure, Campus Jourdan (48, boulevard Jourdan), Paris

Programme:

Preliminary note:

Besides the discussion of the pre-circulated papers (in "Paper discussion groups" A and B) and the four keynotes, participants of the school will form (2-3) interdisciplinary groups ("Group Work") to work on a topic or domain of their choice (ideally an object related to the mission of the actors who come to the School). They will be asked to consider three broad questions, while focusing on specific transformations in the chosen domain. In doing so, they will be invited to reflect on the role of the concept of imaginaries as well as on the contribution their different disciplines can make for these transformations:

(1) Where do we want to go? Which kind of desirable (transformed) society/ world do we envision? Which imaginaries could be associated?

(2) How can we achieve the transformation? What trajectory can we take to achieve this transformation? What is the role of imaginaries in this process?

(3) With whom would we like/ need to work together with in order to achieve the transformation? (transdisciplinarity question, involving collaboration between disciplines and with actors on the ground)

The results of this group work could be presented by the participants of the spring school at the Journée David Claessen on Apr. 10 in the afternoon during a half-hour slot. This work will complement the responses to the questionnaire that was conducted for the David Claessen Day (which contains similar questions).
